A Word from SASE President Glenn Morgan

Welcome to SASE 2015 in London. This will be our 27th annual conference and one of our largest. It is a great pleasure to hold this event at the London School of Economics and Political Science. The LSE remains one of the leading world centres for the social sciences and the theme of the conference “Inequality in the 21st Century” resonates with the history and traditions of the institution. It has been very gratifying to see how SASE participants have responded to this theme resulting in a large number of mini-conferences, plenary sessions, and network meetings exploring the subject of inequality from a variety of angles.

As a setting for the discussion of this issue, London is of course a living laboratory. Going East from the LSE will take you past the Royal Courts of Justice and Fleet Street into the heart of the old City of London, with the Bank of England, the Stock Exchange, the Lloyds Insurance Market, and continuing further Eastwards down to Docklands and Canary Wharf will lead you to where the huge powerhouses of global financial markets are located. Going down the Strand leads to the National Gallery, the West End Theatreland, Covent Garden, cafes, pubs, and restaurants galore. Going from there down the Mall leads to Buckingham Palace and then Westminster, followed by the Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea where the wealthiest live.

This wealth and opulence is serviced by a huge number of invisible and semi-visible workers (including many migrants), who make it all possible but whose jobs are precarious, wages low (and often supported by the state welfare system), and hours long and unsociable, made worse by the lack of housing at affordable prices in the inner city. Alongside this grouping, London also contains a huge number of educational and research institutions, feeding into medical services, the IT industry, the arts and culture sectors. The Houses of Parliament and much of the British civil service remain located in Westminster. This mix makes London a vibrant and dynamic place characterized by deep inequalities, but where different lifestyles co-exist. We hope alongside the academic programme of the conference you will be able to experience some of this diversity.

Participating in organizing the conference has been a pleasure thanks to all the great people who have been helping. David Marsden, Professor of Industrial Relations at the LSE, former SASE President and organizer of a previous SASE conference in the LSE, played a central role in ensuring that it was possible to hold SASE in this location. He has taken on the role of Local Organizer with his customary efficiency and courtesy and has ensured that the conference arrangements and our relations with LSE have worked smoothly. Rachel Ward from the LSE Conference Office has handled all our requests with great efficiency and helpfulness. Central to the whole process has been the continued great work of the SASE secretariat, the inspirational Martha Zuber, forever full of ideas and provocations as well as hugely efficient in managing the conference process along with her great staff: Jacob Bromberg and Pat Zraidi. We also need to thank Sciences Po and the current and former directors of the CSO, Olivier Borraz and Christine Musselin for continuing to support SASE's Paris Office. Also my personal thanks are due to previous SASE Presidents, Bruce Carruthers and Patrick Legales, for all their help and advice.

We hope you have a great conference, enjoy LSE as a venue and experience some of the delights that London can offer.

About This Program

This conference schedule has been loosely divided into two event types: speakers and sessions. The latter category includes all panels, including featured panels and author-meets-critic events. In an attempt to limit scheduling conflicts, sessions do not overlap with featured speakers.

Plenary and semi-plenary featured speakers are all listed in the at-a-glance calendar.

There are ten time slots for sessions during the conference, as indicated on the at-a-glance calendar. Since there are multiple sessions scheduled into each time slot, each session has been identified with a letter and a number. The letter corresponds to the network organizing the session and is paired with a number to create a unique identifier to help you locate the session in the program. Featured Panels are listed as FP, Mini-Conference Themes as TH, and Special Events as SP.

To find out where and when a given participant is presenting, you can look at the participant list at the back of this program. Next to his or her name, you will find the panels in which he or she is presenting, as well as the times of those panels. For example: Jane Doe, A-8, Friday 2:15. Once you have this information, you can go to the main schedule and look for the A-8 panel on Friday at 2:15.

The main schedule provides a detailed list of sessions (titles, locations, participants, etc.) in chronological order. To help you navigate it more quickly, a list of sessions organized by network appears just before it in this program.

The PDF version of this program is available on the SASE website www.sase.org

*Please note: You must bring either a USB key or your own laptop if you plan on using a PowerPoint presentation (Macintosh users should bring a standard VGA convertor). USB keys are preferable.

Call for Network Theme Proposals

Network Theme Proposal Deadline: 10 July 2015

SASE invites proposals for new themes and/or organizers for Networks I and K. We are equally open to proposals for revitalizing these networks or for changing their focus to other themes related to socio-economics broadly conceived. An ideal theme would add a new angle to our annual conferences, one not covered by existing networks. (See https://sase.org/research-networks/about-the-sase-research-networks\_fr\_17.html for a list of existing networks.) To ensure viability of the network in the long term, it would need to be of sufficiently broad academic interest to generate a steady stream of conference paper submissions every year. To help with the start-up process, new networks will be organized as mini-conferences in their first year.

Please submit any questions and/or your proposal to the SASE Network Committee with the following information:

- 1) The names, contact details, and positions of the proposed organizers. Please include brief biographical details and a list of relevant or important publications.
- 2) The title of the proposed network theme.
- 3) A detailed exposition of the theme, its academic foundations, and its future potential. This would include an assessment of expected demand for the proposed network among the scholarly community, ideally including supporting evidence and names of possible or desirable participants. This section should also lay out any steps organizers intend to take to ensure sufficient participation in the network, such as the possibility of forming an association between the network and an academic journal.

Please submit your proposal by 10 July 2015. The SASE Network Committee will assess all received proposals and announce their decision within about a month.

Please e-mail in Word or PDF format to: mzuber@sase.org

Call for Conference Venue Proposals

SASE is looking for venues to host future annual conferences. Odd-year meetings will be held in Europe and even-year meeting outside Europe.

Proposals should include information about the venue, key members of the organizing committee, experience, benefits to SASE, and resources to be put towards the event.

For more information or to submit a PDF proposal, please write to mzuber@sase.org

The Economic Sociology and Political Economy online academic community

Dear SASE members and colleagues,

If there is the propitious and proper occasion to present the Economic Sociology and Political Economy online academic community then it is the SASE annual meeting.

The Economic Sociology and Political Economy community's goal is to disseminate the insights of socio-political research of the economy to the public and academics; and to serve as a platform on which our members (more than 31,000 researchers, students, practitioners and activists from 110 countries) share relevant information, exchange ideas and create collaborations (generating about 70,000 monthly website visits).

Reviews and digests of enlightening books, interesting articles, worth reading posts from the leading blogs, sharp quotes, important calls for papers, scholarships and job openings are being brought on a regular basis to the attention of our followers; and all these related to topics in Economic Sociology, Political Economy, Capitalism, Social Studies of Finance and Markets, Labor and Welfare research, and Sociology of Economics.

The ES/PE community often serves as a teaching resource in order to arouse students' interest in these issues, to keep them academically involved as well as to encourage engaging in public sociology.

Our community is active on the main social media networks. You are welcome to visit us, to join, and please feel free to spread the word about the ES/PE community to anyone who is interested in socio-political study of the economy: your colleagues, students and friends.

Featured Speakers

Colin Crouch is Professor Emeritus at Warwick Business School in the UK. He is an economic sociologist, with particular interests in international comparative research at the interface between sociology, politics and the study of work and employment. His writings in comparative political economy constitute a programme of comparative analysis of the regulation of work and employment, the structure and behaviour of organised interest groups, and national governance regimes. He was previously Professor of Comparative Social Institutions at the European University Institute, Florence, and has also held academic positions at Oxford University and LSE. He is a Fellow of the British Academy, member of the Academy of Social Sciences, External Scientific member of the Max Planck Institute for Social Research at Cologne, and a former SASE President.

Old Theatre (Old Building), Saturday 12pm

Nancy DiTomaso is Professor of Management and Global Business at Rutgers Business School, Newark and New Brunswick. Her research addresses issues of diversity, culture, and inequality, as well as the management of knowledge-based organizations, and the management of scientists and engineers. She has been elected to several national offices in various professional associations, including a position on the American Sociological Association Council, as Chair of the Organizations and Occupations Section of the ASA, and as President of SASE.

Hong Kong Theatre (Clement House), Friday 12pm

Stephen Machin is Professor of Economics at University College London and Research Director of the Centre for Economic Performance at the London School of Economics. Previously he has been visiting Professor at Harvard University (1993/4) and at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (2001/2). He is a Fellow of the British Academy, a Fellow of the Society of Labor Economists a member of the UK Low Pay Commission, and has served President of the European Association of Labor Economists. His research interests include inequality, education and crime, and the interactions between them.

Old Theatre (Old Building), Friday 12pm

Marianna Mazzucato holds the RM Phillips chair in the Economics of Innovation at SPRU in the University of Sussex. Her research focuses on the relationship between financial markets, innovation, and economic growth at the company, industry, and national level. Her new book The Entrepreneurial State: debunking private vs. public sector myths (Anthem, 2013) focuses on the need to develop new frameworks to understand the role of the state in economic growth – and how to enable rewards from innovation to be just as ‘social’ as the risks taken. Professor Mazzucato is winner of the New Statesman SPERI Prize in Political Economy and in 2013 the New Republic called her one of the ‘3 most important thinkers about innovation’. She advises the UK government and the EC on innovation-led growth.

Peacock Theatre (Peacock Theatre, Portugal Street), Friday 12pm

Featured Panelists

Craig Calhoun is a world-renowned social scientist whose work connects sociology to culture, communication, politics, philosophy, and economics. He took up his post as LSE Director in 2012, having left the United States where he was University Professor at New York University and director of the Institute for Public Knowledge and President of the Social Science Research Council. Professor Calhoun co-founded, with Richard Sennett, Professor of Sociology at LSE, the NYLON programme, which brings together graduate students from New York and London for co-operative research programmes. He is the author of several books including Nations Matter, Critical Social Theory, Neither Gods Nor Emperors and most recently The Roots of Radicalism (University of Chicago Press, 2012).

Old Theatre (Old Building), Friday 5:45-6:45pm

In discussion with: Amitai Etzioni (The George Washington University), Wolfgang Streek (MPIfG), and Polly Toynbee (The Guardian)

Tom Clark writes daily editorials on politics, economics, and social affairs as a lead writer for The Guardian in London. His latest book, Hard Times (Yale University Press, 2014), covers inequality, recession, and its aftermath.

Hong Kong Theatre (Clement House), Thursday 12pm

In discussion with: Mike Savage (LSE) and Andrew Sayer (Lancaster University)

Amitai Etzioni is SASE's founding President. In 1990, he founded the Communitarian Network, a not-for-profit, non-partisan organization dedicated to shoring up the moral, social and political foundations of society, and in 1994-1995, he served as President of the American Sociological Association. In 2001, Dr. Etzioni was awarded the John P. McGovern Award in Behavioral Sciences as well as the Officer's Cross of the Order of Merit of the Federal Republic of Germany. He was also the recipient of the Seventh James Wilbur Award for Extraordinary Contributions to the Appreciation and Advancement of Human Values by the Conference on Value Inquiry, as well as the Sociological Practice Association's Outstanding Contribution Award.

Old Theatre (Old Building), Friday 5:45-6:45pm

In discussion with: Craig Calhoun (LSE), Wolfgang Streek (MPIfG), and Polly Toynbee (The Guardian)

Woody Powell is Professor of Education (and) Sociology, Organizational Behavior, Management Science and Engineering, Public Policy, and Communication at Stanford University, and Lewis A. Coser Visiting Professor at the Hertie School of Governance in Berlin. From 1999 to 2010, he was director of Scancor at Stanford; today he remains involved with Scancor through supervising the postdoctoral fellows program and running the annual PhD workshop in Europe. At Stanford, Powell is faculty co-director of the Center on Philanthropy and Civil Society.

Old Theatre (Old Building), Thursday 12pm

In discussion with: Nina Bandelj (UC Irvine), Nitsan Chorev (Brown University), Mike Reed (Cardiff Business School), and Andrew Schrank (Brown University)

Mike Savage is Head of Department and Chair of Sociology at the London School of Economics. Previously, he was founding Director of CRESC - the ESRC Centre for Research on Socio-Cultural Change (2004-2010). Savage's research has been funded by the Economic and Social Research Council, the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council, the European Union, the Equality and Human Rights Commission, and the Leverhulme Trust. He was editor of The Sociological Review (2001-2007), and was elected an Academician of the Social Sciences in 2003 and Fellow of the British Academy in 2007.

Hong Kong Theatre (Clement House), Thursday 12pm

In discussion with: Tom Clark (The Guardian) and Andrew Sayer (Lancaster University)

Andrew Sayer is Professor of Social Theory and Political Economy at Lancaster University, UK. Sayer's work has ranged from the development of radical political economic theory through the study of uneven development, and urban and regional change to the cultural dimensions of economic phenomena such as the ethical aspects of people's experience of class inequalities to the limits of normative thinking in social science.

Hong Kong Theatre (Clement House), Thursday 12pm

In discussion with: Tom Clark (The Guardian) and Mike Savage (LSE)

Wolfgang Streeck is Emeritus Director of the Max Planck Institute for the Study of Societies, Cologne, and a former SASE President. He was a Fellow at the Wissenschaftskolleg in Berlin and the Russell Sage Foundation in New York; and he is a member of the Berlin-Brandenburg Academy of Sciences and the Academia Europea. His interest is and has always been the tension between a democratic polity and a capitalist economy, as reflected in the constitution of the modern welfare state and in the regulation of labor relations and the employment relationship through trade unions and employer associations.

Old Theatre (Old Building), Friday 5:45-6:45pm

In discussion with: Craig Calhoun (LSE), Amitai Etzioni (The George Washington University), and Polly Toynbee (The Guardian)

SASE 2015 Annual Conference Theme

THE LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE ■

Inequality in the 21st Century

The London School of Economics and Political Science

The first decade of the 21st century saw increased controversy over the degree of inequality in contemporary societies. This controversy grew more heated yet due to the fact that even after the financial crisis, the wealth and income of the rich continued to grow disproportionately in spite of their role in the crash. As the remedies to the crisis became transmuted in many countries into austerity, the divide appeared to be growing larger, leading to popular protest movements such as the Occupy movement. At the same time, conventional politics and politicians seemed relatively powerless to intervene or to articulate alternatives. The result in many countries has appeared to be on the one hand a general disillusion with conventional politics and on the other hand the emergence of new populist movements that reject traditional political remedies.

At this time, it is therefore appropriate for SASE to revisit the question of inequality, especially in a conference hosted by the London School of Economics, founded by social reformers in the early 20th century and the academic home of R.H. Tawney, whose book Equality (initially published in 1931 and reissued regularly through the early post-war years) served as a key text for Labour politics in the UK and rejected the idea that the inequality he perceived in that period was economically efficient. On the contrary, Tawney saw it as “an economic liability of alarming dimensions.” He argued that “the distribution of wealth [in societies] depends, not wholly, indeed, but largely on their institutions; and the character of their institutions is determined not by immutable economic laws but by the values, preferences, interests and ideals which rule at any given moment in a given society.” (1964 ed., p. 54)

For anybody interested in socio-economics, therefore, inequality is a central phenomenon where institutions and markets come together, and where the key political questions of an era are enacted.

SASE/Porto Alegre Regional Meeting

State, Society and Market: Ibero-America in the 21st Century

UFRGS: Federal University of Rio Grande do Sul, Porto Alegre, Brazil

19-21 November 2015

Call for papers

The global financial crisis of 2007-2008 and the ensuing Great Recession have discredited the market fundamentalist dogma that had assumed pride of place in social and development policymaking over the previous three decades. Policymakers have re-evaluated their commitment to a neoliberal model that delivered neither growth nor equity, and academics have not only voiced their own doubts about laissez-faire but have begun to explore heterodox and multidisciplinary alternatives. While the Ibero-American countries have been particularly hostile to neoliberalism, and have animated some of the best-known alternatives, they are still beset by a number of profound challenges. In the last three years, for example, Latin American growth rates have become anaemic, and progress on the social front has stagnated. And Spain and Portugal have not only been particularly hard hit by the financial crisis of 2007-2008 but have paid an enormous price for the budgetary austerity that followed.

The Ibero-American countries thus face a key moment in which the incipient alternatives that emerged in the wake of the crisis confront a number of threats, including the very real possibility of a conservative counter-reaction. In this context, the 2nd Ibero-American Meeting of Socio-Economics, a SASE Regional Conference, will explore the prospects for these countries, with a particular focus on the state's role in a post-neoliberal world. More specifically, we will examine the state's capacity to promote a viable development agenda in the context of globalization by acting autonomously to implement industrial policies, defend countercyclical fiscal and monetary policies, build physical and institutional infrastructures, improve the competitiveness of the manufacturing sector, and enhance the quality of social policies. We will also acknowledge and examine the roles of various forms of capitalism, with different institutional combinations, highlighting the importance of the state in coordinating policies that promote growth and competitiveness.

The socioeconomic demands, particularly in Latin American countries, put the issues into perspective for discussion on strategies and obstacles to sustainable development in the long term, and it should be analyzed from a multidisciplinary perspective. Accordingly, the 2nd Ibero-American Meeting on Socio-Economics will discuss the following issues: the state of the art in Socio-Economy Studies; development and varieties of Capitalism; democracy, citizenship and social movements; macroeconomics, financial systems and prudential regulation; culture, development and creative economy; employment, well-being, inequality and social policies; sustainable development, territory and environment; industry and international trade; globalization, international relations and regional integration.

SASE Announces its 28th Annual Conference Theme & Location

Moral Economies, Economic Moralities

University of California, Berkeley

24 – 26 June 2016

Call for papers

Moral judgments that justify or vilify different economic arrangements on the basis of some final value are extremely common in the social sciences. Since the beginning of political economy, market institutions have elicited strong and rival views across a broad spectrum of positions. Those who marvel at the coordinating power of the invisible hand confront those who revile capitalism's inherently exploitative nature. The celebration of efficiency faces the condemnation of waste. And democratic interpretations of laissez faire meet the hard reality of growing social inequalities. There is no economy that is not political and moral at the same time.

Social scientists, of course, are not the only ones to judge the economy while living in it. E.P. Thompson famously coined the term "moral economy" to denote the inchoate feelings and obligations that orient workers, and make them see certain courses of action (such as riots) as legitimate or illegitimate. To the extent that individuals and institutions act on them, those judgments help constitute economic lines of action, too.

Finally, economic instruments and technologies lay down, and perform, moralized rules about what is expected of economic actors. All exchange systems embed implicit or explicit codes of moral worth in their specific designs and rules; all economic institutions make and remake kinds of moral beings by shifting their classificatory schemes or treatment algorithms. These "economic moralities," typically fashioned by the action of markets and states, interact more or less peacefully with people's "moral economies." Indeed many of today's pressing political conflicts may be understood in terms of the hiatus between these two social forms.

The 2016 SASE conference in Berkeley, California, hosted by the University of California, Berkeley from 24 – 26 June 2016, will seek contributions that explore the relationship between economy and morality from a variety of disciplinary and methodological perspectives, reaching back to SASE's origins and moving forward into new territories. # SASE 2016 Mini-Conference Themes Call for Proposals

Mini-Conference Theme Proposal Deadline: 1 October 2015

As they have in the past years, thematic mini-conferences will form a key element of next year's annual conference in Berkeley, California, hosted by the University of California, Berkeley from 24 - 26 June 2016. Proposals are now welcome for mini-conference themes. Up to eight mini-conference themes will be selected for inclusion in the Call for Papers by the program committee, which may also propose themes of its own. Preference will be given to proposals linked to the overarching conference theme, "Moral Economies, Economic Moralities," but mini-conferences on other SASE-related themes will also be considered.

Proposals for mini-conference themes must be submitted electronically to the SASE Executive Director by 1 October 2015. All mini-conference proposals should include the name(s) and email addresses of the organizer(s), together with a brief description. As in previous years, each mini-conference will consist of 2 to 6 panels, which will be featured as a separate stream in the program. Each panel will have a discussant, meaning that selected participants must submit a completed paper in advance, by 15 May 2016. Submissions for panels will be open to all scholars on the basis of an extended abstract. If a paper proposal cannot be accommodated within a mini-conference, organizers will forward it to the most appropriate research network as a regular submission.

Consult the program for the SASE 2016 theme. Please see www.sase.org to look at mini-conference themes from previous years.

Proposals should be submitted to: Martha Zuber (mzuber@sase.org)

Special Events

Presidential Address and Welcome Reception

This year's presidential address will take place in the Old Theatre, located on the ground floor of the Old Building, at 5:45pm on Thursday, 2 July. The presidential address will be followed by a welcome reception at the 4th floor restaurant of the Old Building from 7pm until 9pm.

Awards Ceremony

The annual awards ceremony will follow the Presidential Panel "Does Capitalism Have a Future", featuring Craig Calhoun, Amitai Etzioni, Polly Toynbee, and Wolfgang Streeck in the Old Theatre, located on the ground floor of the Old Building. The ceremony to celebrate the winners of this year's travel grants, student stipends, and EHESS/Fondation France-Japon prizes will begin at 6:45pm on Friday, 3 July.

Gala Reception

The gala reception will be held on the 5th and 6th floors of the Old Building just following the awards ceremony. Please come join us!

Meet the Editors: Socio-Economic Review A Discussion of Publication Strategies, Topics, and New Developments with the Editors

The editors of Socio-Economic Review will speak on getting published in the journal in Tower Two, room 1.02 from 10:15-11:45am on Friday, 3 July.

General Information for Participants

Computers and Wi-Fi

WiFi is available campus-wide via the Cloud.

If you haven't already registered for the Cloud you can do so via the link below:

<https://service.thecloud.net/service-platform/login/registration/>

You can find more information about the Cloud and register for free by following the link below:

<http://www.thecloud.net/free-wifi/join-the-cloud/>

If you are a staff member or student from another educational institution attending an event at LSE then you should also be able to access Wi-Fi via Eduroam with your login details from your home institution. Please contact your local IT support services within your home institution to check whether you are registered to access the Eduroam Wi-Fi network. More information about the Eduroam network can be found on the eduroam website: <https://www.eduroam.org/>

*Please note: You must bring either a USB key or your own laptop if you plan on using a PowerPoint presentation (Macintosh users should bring a standard VGA convertor). USB keys are preferable.

Coffee

There are many coffee and snack options in vicinity, especially along the bottom of Kingsway.

Here are a few favorites:

Delaunay Café (55 Aldwych)

Fields Bar and Kitchen (inside Lincoln's Inn Fields)

Coopers (49 Lincoln's Inn Fields)

Ye Olde White Horse (2 St Clement's Ln)

The Weston Café (6th floor, Saw Swee Hock Student Centre)

The Plaza Café (John Watkins Plaza – just beside the LSE library)

Fleet River Bakery (71 Lincolns Inn Fields)

Roka (71 Aldwych)

Book Exhibit

This year's book exhibit can be found just next to the registration desks on the ground floor of Tower One, room G.01.

Directions

By Taxi

London cabbies are renowned for their enlarged hippocampuses, which grow as they absorb “the Knowledge” – an intimate familiarity with the streets of London. Simply let your driver know that you are going to the London School of Economics and you’re set!

By Public Transportation

To get to the LSE, go to any subway station and look for the color-coded map of the subway system. The campus is located near the Holborn station on the Piccadilly (blue) and Central (red) lines and the Temple station on the District (green) and Circle (yellow) lines. For more information, visit the London Transport website (<https://www.tfl.gov.uk/>).

The following bus lines stop near or on the Aldwych: 1, 4, 6, 9, 11, 13, 15, 23, 26, 59, 68, X68, 76, 77a, 91, 139, 168, 171, 172, 176, 188, 243, 341 and 521

From the Holborn station, head south toward Parker Street on Kingsway and take a left onto Portugal Street and the Old Building will be on your right. To get to Clement House and Towers One and Two, continue south on Kingsway until it forks and take a left on Aldwych: Clement House and the gates leading to the Tower buildings will be on your left.

From the Temple station, head north toward Strand on Arundel Street or Surrey Street. Cross Strand to arrive at Aldwych and either turn right to access Towers One and Two (on your left) or turn left to find Clement House (on your right).

By Public Transportation from London Heathrow

Take the Piccadilly line train directly from Heathrow Airport station to the Holborn station and then follow the directions via Holborn station, above.

By Public Transportation from Gatwick Airport

Take the Southern rail from Gatwick Airport to the London Victoria station, where you will transfer to either the Circle line (toward Hammersmith) or the District line (toward Upminster). Exit the tube at the Temple station and follow the directions via Temple station, above.

Meals and Tourism

Conference participants who have pre-purchased lunch vouchers can retrieve them at the registration desk (Tower One, ground floor). Lunch vouchers can be used at the 4th floor restaurant in the Old Building during lunchtime hours only.

Conference participants who have not pre-purchased lunch vouchers will find a large array of restaurants surrounding and on the LSE campus. Restaurant suggestions, as well as other tourism information may be found on the SASE website (www.sase.org).

War and Authoritarianism in the Formation of the Japanese Welfare State

Abstract

Theories of development and expansion of the welfare state have invoked arguments of working class strength or cross-class coalitions, institutional determinants (Pontusson 2005) or electoral systems (Estevez-Abe 2008). Still missing are analyses of the impact of dramatic shifts associated with the rise of authoritarianism in the long-run growth of state institutions and social welfare policies. My paper adds to the burgeoning field of non-democratic social policy studies by contributing evidence from social policy and welfare state transformation under Japanese 'fascism' in the years 1920 until 1945. It examines how the Japanese authoritarian military regime significantly altered existing welfare state institutions in Japan, as well as created an entirely new set of social insurance type institutions that form the basis of the contemporary Japanese welfare state.

Ideas on social policy transformation based on contemporary understandings of 'social problems' had gained in importance in the early 20th century already, and the field of social and relief work underwent significant changes during the Taishō period (1912-1926) in response to widespread protest during the 1918 Rice Riots. However, it was only during authoritarian governance and under total war that significant social insurance institutions were set up. What explains this peculiar timing, as well as selective focus on health and pensions, rather than educational reform or labor-containment policies?

My paper draws on a vast array of Japanese-language archival documents to show (1) the nature of institutional social policy change and its impact outlasting the period of World War II, and (2) the importance of authoritarian and war logics in shaping type, scope and form of implemented policies. I use historical legislative documents, government statistics and briefs and publications by relevant stakeholders (e.g. Social Work Association, Japanese Association for the Study of Social Policy, District Councilors' Association, Trade Unions) to trace the legislative history, and historical materials of the leading government-affiliated think tanks of the Showa period, namely the Showa Research Association (1930-1940) and the Imperial Rule Association (1940-1945), as well as op-eds and recollections of former statesmen and military personnel to trace the logic of policy expansion.

2015 Socio-Economic Review Best Paper Prize

Carsten Q. Schneider and Kristin Makszin

The SER Best Paper Prize committee (Nitsan Chorev, Virginia Doellgast, and Marc Schneiberg) considered all the reviewed papers for the four 2014 volumes, including symposia papers, but not state of the art, discussion or review forum papers. The committee looked for papers that: 1) addressed substantive questions and issues that have far reaching implications and are of interest to a broad range of SER readers; 2) clearly and effectively engaged prior theory and research; and 3) used state of the art research methods to analyze new or existing data sets in ways that either brought important new phenomena to light or substantially revised existing understanding of socio-economic facts, trends or relationships.

The committee is delighted to announce Carsten Q. Schneider and Kristin Makszin as the winners of the seventh annual prize for the best submitted article published in the previous year: “Forms of Welfare Capitalism and Education-Based Participatory Inequality.” (SER vol. 12, no. 2, p. 437-462). Schneider and Makszin’s paper analyzes how institutional conditions shape the impact of differences in education on political participation in capitalist democracies. The authors take as their starting point the observation that socio-economic disparities often translate into political inequality: citizens with lower education and lower income participate less in politics than those with higher education and income. However, the size of this participation gap varies substantially across democracies. The authors use a combination of multi-level regression and fuzzy set QCA methods to analyze the participation gap as a function of national level welfare and labor institutions. They found, first, that protective employment legislation and public spending on unemployment benefits and active labor market policies consistently reduced the gap in political participation. Second, conjunctions of welfare capitalist regimes supported reduced inequality in political participation. Finally, welfare regimes reduced participatory inequality by providing less educated citizens with material resources for participation, and, more importantly, with stable employment and higher social status., which supported denser networks and higher levels of engagement.

Schneider and Makszin’s paper presents an original and thoughtful analysis that deepens our understanding of the relationships between economic inequality and democracy. Its findings provide an important contribution to pressing questions concerning the acceleration of socio-economic and political polarization in the contemporary period. It also examines relationships between welfare state regimes, socio-economic inequality and gaps in political participation across multiple levels, using a mixed-method approach that allows the authors to shed new light both on the nature of these relationships and the mechanisms through which they occur.

Carsten Q. Schneider’s Bio: Carsten Q. Schneider is Associate Professor and Head of the Political Science Department at Central European University. His research focuses on regime transitions, the consolidation and quality of democracies. He is also working in the field of comparative methodology, especially on set-theoretic methods, in particular Qualitative Comparative Analysis (QCA) and its fuzzy set extension. His book Set-Theoretic Methods for the Social Sciences, co-authored with Claudius Wagemann, appeared with Cambridge University Press in 2012. Schneider was an elected member of the Young Academy of Science in Germany from 2009-2014, and he spent the 2009-2010 academic year as a John F. Kennedy Memorial Fellow at the Minda de Gunzburg Center for European Studies at Harvard University. As its Founding Director, Schneider led the Center for the Study of Imperfections in Democracies (DISC) at CEU from 2008 to 2013.

Kristin Makszin's Bio: Kristin Makszin teaches Research Design and Methods in IR at Central European University. Her research is in the field of comparative political economy. Her current research projects relate to the politics of austerity, inequalities in political participation, and government formations in diverse political party systems. Her research applies both quantitative and qualitative methods, especially how to use quantitative methods in social science for researching topics with limited available data or limited number of cases. She also taught Statistics and Comparative European Politics at McDaniel College Budapest and has worked as a Research Fellow at the Center for the Study of Imperfections in Democracies (DISC) at CEU.

HONORABLE MENTION

This year, the SER Best Paper Prize Committee has decided to discern the paper "Brothers' Keepers: Gift Giving Networks and the Organization of Jewish American Diaspora Nationalism" (SER vol. 12, no. 3, p.463-488), by Dan Lainer-Vos, as meritorious of an honorable mention. Lainer-Vos's paper challenges existing perceptions in the literature on nationalism by utilizing the constructivist notion of belonging as a sentiment that is not given, but organized and engineered. Based on a detailed historical study of the United Jewish Appeal (UJA) during the 1940s, the paper documents the various ways in which this organization helped raise funds and construct the attachment of Jewish-Americans to the state of Israel. Lainer-Vos draws heavily on actor network theory to identify actors and the practices and mechanisms they mobilize, using data from extensive archival research. The paper shows, first, how the UJA built an organizational infrastructure for giving, including a network of volunteers and salaried field representatives. Second, it shows how the UJA overcame the absence of reciprocity typical of gift exchanges to engineer generosity competition among givers to motivate contributions and attachment. Third, it shows how the UJA worked the problem of heterogeneity in nation building through highlighting differences between different American Jews and between American Jews and Jews in Europe and Palestine, and through using narratives about the differences or hierarchies of sacrifice to goad diaspora Jews in America to support and honor the sacrifices of Jews abroad, producing a layered national membership. In developing these findings, this article contributes both an interesting case study that marries Durkheim's (and others') notion of gift with Bourdieu's analysis of symbolic violence. It advances new arguments concerning and a novel approach to analyzing nation building, opening up new avenues for future research on nationalism and the state.

About Socio-Economic Review

Socio-Economic Review (SER) is the official journal of SASE. It is part of a broader movement in the social sciences that returns to the economy's socio-political foundations. Devoted to advancing socio-economics, SER deals with the analytical, political and moral questions arising at the intersection of economy and society. Articles in SER explore how the economy is or should be governed by social relations, institutional rules, political decisions, and cultural values. SER considers the different ways in which the economy affects society, such as by breaking up old institutional forms and giving rise to new ones. The scope of the journal is deliberately broad, and thus opens the debate to new variations on its general theme. Its editorial structure allows editors to engage intellectually with authors and their submissions.

To find out more about SER, including detailed information on how to submit a paper, please consult the website: <http://ser.oxfordjournals.org>.

Editor in Chief Gregory Jackson and the other editors of SER will speak on getting published in the peer-review journal in Tower Two, room 1.02 from 10:15-11:45am on Friday, 3 July.

SASE 2015 Elections

We are delighted to announce that Marion Fourcade will serve as president of SASE in 2015-2016.

The following people have been elected to a three-year term (2015-2018) on the Executive Council:

Nina Bandelj, University of California, Irvine, USA

Dorothee Bohle, Central European University, Hungary

Isabelle Ferreras, Université Catholique de Louvain, Belgium

Patrick Le Galès, Sciences Po, Paris, France

Alya Guseva, Boston University, USA

Jacqueline O'Reilly, University of Brighton Business School, UK

Santos Miguel Ruesga, Universidad Autónoma de Madrid, Spain

J. Nicholas Ziegler, University of California, Berkeley, USA

SASE congratulates newcomers and re-elected members alike.

A big thank you to all those who participated in the election.

Warm thanks to Hyun-Chin Lim, Paul Osterman, Akos Rona-Tas, Andrew Schrank, Katherine Stone, and Chris Warhurst, who will be leaving the Executive Council this year.

About SASE's Home Base

The Center for the Sociology of Organizations (CSO) is SASE's headquarters.

The CSO was founded in the early 1960's by Michel Crozier, and pioneered the discipline of the sociology of organizations in France. Today it is part of Sciences Po and the CNRS. Erhard Friedberg directed it for many years, followed by Christine Musselin. Its current director is Olivier Borraz.

The CSO is a leading center of economic sociology in France, and its research covers the sociology of organizations, economic sociology, and public affairs. Scholars and PhD students participate in five major research programs at the CSO: Economic Governance, Higher Education, Risk, Health Politics, State and Territories.

With more than twenty senior full time researchers, thirty doctoral students and twenty affiliated research fellows, along with frequent guest scholars in residence (including a number of SASE members), the CSO is a lively international research community in the heart of Paris, and SASE is proud to be a part of it.
