Bakgrunn for saken:

Det vises til diskusjonssak 1 i styremøtet den 8. september 2025: Innkalling til styremøte ved Økonomisk institutt 8. september 2025 - Økonomisk institutt \(ØI\)

Det foreslås å lyse ut følgende stillinger:

1-2 makrostillinger avhengig av hvor mange som takker ja til de to tilbudene som er gitt til fast stilling i makro. En stilling blir delfinansiert av Karl Harmenberg sitt prosjekt, WakoMakro.

1 mikrostilling delfinansiert av Bård Harstad sitt prosjekt, EXPLOIT.

1 stilling i internasjonal handel delfinansiert av Senter for internasjonal økonomi, NORCIE.

1 stilling i utviklingsøkonomi delfinansiert av Senter for internasjonal økonomi, NORCIE.

Stillingene skal annonseres internasjonalt gjennom de samme kanaler som tidligere, i første omgang i EconJobMarket (EJM). Kunngjøringstekster vil i tillegg bli lyst ut offentlig via JobbNorge med senere søknadsfrist. Styret får forslag til kunngjøringstekster til JobbNorge i neste styremøte i november. The Department of Economics invites applicants for a set of positions in economics within the following fields

- Macroeconomics: We encourage applications from both candidates with applied and theoretical research interests to apply. The position is partly funded by the Norwegian Research Council project WaCoMacro.
- Microeconomics: We encourage applications from candidates with applied and theoretical interests to apply. The position is partly funded by the ERC project EXPLOIT Environmental Exploitation of Political Economics.
- International trade: The position is partly funded by the Norwegian Centre for International economics.
- Development economics: The position is partly funded by the Norwegian Centre for International economic

The appointments will be the rank of tenure track Assistant Professor, tenure track Associate Professor or tenured Associate Professor. The tenure-track positions are a fulltime positions for a period of seven years. The candidate will towards the end of the tenure track period be evaluated for a tenured position according to the Department's tenure track requirements. Anticipated start date for all positions will be August 1, 2026.

Candidates must have earned a PhD degree in Economics or a related area by the time of appointment, or shortly thereafter, and no later than September 30, 2026.

Candidates for a tenure-track position should have achieved a PhD degree no earlier than 2021 (additional time may be allowed for leave related to childbirth or adoption).

Candidates should have a demonstrated record of excellence in research and teaching, specializing in one of the fields listed above. We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and enhance our existing departmental strengths. The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent research, and to contribute to an outstanding, competitive, and externally funded research program.

Candidates must provide evidence of excellence in research of the highest international caliber, which can be demonstrated by an innovative job market paper with a significant contribution to the literature, high-quality working papers, (forthcoming) publications in top-ranked and field-relevant journals, strong recommendations by referees who themselves have a record of excellence in research of the highest international caliber, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, and awards and accolades.

For candidates to a tenured position, the assessment will emphasize the performance over the last five years, and the tenure requirements for the tenure-track position are informative of both the quality and quantity of research output that is expected.

Evidence of excellence in teaching will be provided through teaching accomplishments, strong letters of reference, the teaching dossier including a statement of teaching philosophy, sample syllabi, and teaching evaluations, or other evidence of superior performance in teaching-related activities submitted as part of the application. Other teaching-related activities can include performance as a teaching assistant or course instructor, experience leading successful workshops or seminars, student mentorship, and excellent conference presentations or posters.

The positions come with both undergraduate and graduate teaching responsibilities at the Department of Economics.

The University of Oslo has a personnel policy objective of achieving a balanced gender composition, see Gender equality initiatives at UiO. We welcome employees with diverse expertise, life experience and perspectives.

The University of Oslo is Norway's oldest and highest ranked educational and research institution, with 28 000 students and 7000 employees. The Department of Economics is the largest and highest ranked institute for economic research in Norway. The Department offers Bachelor's and Masters' programmes, as well as a doctoral programme with approximately 40 students. The department has attracted a number of ERC grants, it hosts a centre for public economics, Norwegian Fiscal Studies \(NFS\), and a new centre for international economics (the Norwegian Centre for International Economics) will be established in the spring 2026.

The deadline for applications is November 30, 2025. Applications should be submitted via www.econjobmarket.org and should include a cover letter, CV, three letters of reference, a job market paper (clearly labeled) as well as other papers (optional).

Applications must be submitted online at <https://econjobmarket.org/>. Candidates are required to specify which position(s), i.e. which field, they apply for. A complete application will include a current curriculum vitae; a research statement outlining current and future research interests and how the candidate's research profile matches the field of the position; a job market paper (clearly labeled); other working papers or publications; a teaching dossier (which includes a statement of teaching philosophy, sample syllabi, and teaching evaluations or evidence of superior performance in other teaching-related activities as listed above); and three recent letters of reference (on letterhead, dated, and signed) uploaded directly by referees.

We also ask the candidate to motivate their application considering Department's overall research profile and location. Candidates are also asked to specify whether they apply for an assistant professor tenure-track position, and associate professor tenure track position or a tenured associate professor position, or both a tenure track and tenured position.

Interviews will be conducted online, around the time of the European Job Market, 15-18 December. We will invite a limited number of candidates for job talks/campus visits in January or early February.

For questions about these positions, please contact Head of Department, Professor Karen Helene Ulltveit-Moe, email: k.h.ulltveit-moe@econ.uio.no, or Head of Administration, Brita Langeid, email: brita.langeid@econ.uio.no

Salary and rank will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.
