

ISV Design seminar for PhD students, January 2022

Evaluation report

This evaluation report is based on the 13 participants' reflection notes.

All students stated that they were satisfied with the design seminar, using terms such as "beneficial", "valuable", "useful", "constructive", "relevant", "rewarding", or "good".

However, a few students also provided critical comments. First, one student remarked that not all participants complied with the announced format of the project description. Second, one student wanted more time reserved for presentation of the project, using Powerpoint. Finally, one student recommended that we offer more information regarding the required format of the project description and concerning what to focus on when providing comments to other participants' work.

A few participants found the information on the course webpage to be incomplete, and the webpage was therefore updated after the seminar.
