

OSIRIS Seminar October 13th

Research impact – new frontiers and new approaches

Time: 13:00 to 16:00

Place: Auditorium 1, Eilert Sundt house, University of Oslo

This seminar marks the start-up of OSIRIS – the Oslo Institute for Research on the Impact of Science – which for the next eight years will study how and under what conditions research may have an impact on society. OSIRIS is funded by the Research Council of Norway's ForInnPol programme, it is hosted and led by TIK Centre for Technology, Innovation and Culture at the University of Oslo, and it is carried out in partnership with Statistics Norway (SSB), INGENIO at the Polytechnic University of Valencia and MIOIR at the University of Manchester.

Agenda

13:00 Welcome – Fulvio Castellacci, director of TIK

Part 1 – Impact seen from the researchers' side

13:05 What is impact of research and why does it matter? Magnus Gulbrandsen, director of OSIRIS

13:20 How will OSIRIS study impact? Taran Thune, co-director of OSIRIS

13:35 Research perspectives on impact: Arvid Raknerud (Statistics Norway), Jordi Molas-Gallart (INGENIO) and Kate Barker (MIOIR)

14:20 Coffee break

Part 2 – Impact seen from the practitioners' side

14:40 Policy and impact – Bjørn Haugstad, state secretary for Research and Education

14:55 Impact of research in health and care – Atle Fretheim, research director, Norwegian institute of public health

15:10 Universities and impact – Knut Fægri, vice rector, University of Oslo

15:25 Industry and impact – Hanne Marit Bjørk, head of corporate R&D, Statkraft Innovation

15:40 Discussion, questions, summing up

16:00 End of seminar and light refreshments

To sign up for the seminar, please send an email to tina.nass@tik.uio.no.

O S I R I S

Oslo Institute for Research on the Impact of Science